

Applications are now being accepted for the 2014 Engagement Academy for University Leaders

The sixth offering of the Engagement Academy for University Leaders will be held on June 2-5, 2014 in Arlington, Virginia. This unique executive development program is designed for leaders and teams responsible for developing institutional capacity for community engagement. Executives and teams will develop institutional plans for engagement and will return to their campuses with the ability to advance the institutions plan for engagement, as well as, effectively link community engagement to the teaching, research, and service missions of the institution.

This updated Academy will be held at the Virginia Tech Research Center, a metro ride from Reagan National Airport, making it highly accessible. It has also been shortened to accommodate busy schedules, but augmented with online modules, in cooperation with Oregon State University, as prework and as an after-Academy resource.

We are excited to announce new Academy faculty Chancellor Wendell Pritchett, Emily Janke, and Timothy Eatman, joining our internationally known faculty of Sandmann, Holland, Ramaley, and Weerts. We urge you to visit the website: www.cpe.vt.edu/engagementacademy and reserve your seat for the 2014 Engagement Academy for University Leaders in Arlington, Virginia.

The Engagement Academy for University Leaders is hosted by Virginia Tech and endorsed by AASCU, APLU, Campus Compact, CCPH, CUMU, and NERCHE.
