

CALL FOR CONTRIBUTORS AND REVIEWERS

Coming in 2017 Mapping the Adult and Continuing Education Field An International Compendium

Edited by Alan Knox, Simone Conceição, and Larry Martin

A Co-publication of Stylus Publishing and the American Association for Adult and Continuing Education (AAACE)

Our proposed Compendium will be an excellent resource for multidisciplinary scholars, graduate students, and scholarly practitioners. The Compendium articles will be relevant to research and practice in many segments of the adult and continuing education field, emphasizing inquiry and active learning.

We are currently welcoming proposals from practitioners and scholars from various countries and types of providers of adult educational opportunities.

Each succinct and substantive article on an important Adult Education topic should contain relevant concepts, practical examples, and a few references to important publications that provide additional details.

Four individual volumes are planned, including: Adult Learners, Teaching & Learning, Leading & Administering, and Research & Evaluation.

The final book will have an accessible and affordable eBook edition with hyperlinks, enabling readers to navigate among brief articles to understand important connections.

This call for proposals is currently open through Fall 2016.

The Compendium website address below provides details on the project, including: accepting October submission of additional proposals, and cooperation among two dozen associations worldwide to submit articles for use by international readers next summer.
