This intensive professional development program provides advanced doctoral students and early career faculty with background literature, facilitated discussion, mentoring and presentations designed to increase their knowledge and enhance their practice of community engaged scholarship. Participation is limited, and interested applicants must be nominated by their faculty advisor, mentor, or department chairperson.

APPLICANTS FOR THIS PROGRAM SHOULD BE:

Doctoral students or junior faculty members with an interest in community engagement and engaged scholarship, and/or who are involved or interested in research that contributes to their discipline while making positive impact on external stakeholders.

APPLICANTS SHOULD ALSO DEMONSTRATE:

- A desire for new learning about engaged scholarship.
- An interest in working with faculty across disciplines to explore and learn more about how engaged scholarship might be carried out.
- The capacity to effectively communicate the results of their research to public, academic, and other external audiences.

DEADLINE TO APPLY IS APRIL 15TH

WORKSHOP HIGHLIGHTS:

- Master classes on the foundations of community-engaged scholarship, and practical themes such as building an engagement dossier, etc.
- Critical reviews of participants' proposals of community-engaged research projects.
- Panel discussions with faculty, administration, and cooperative extension staff on disciplinary, institutional, and community partner considerations for engaged scholarship.
- Small group work with a designated faculty mentor (includes discussion about methods and theories, with a focus on each individual participant's proposed engaged scholarship).
- Panel discussion with journal editors from peer-reviewed publications that publish engaged scholarship.
- Panel discussion on the challenges, successes and professional pathways related to engaged scholarship.
