Become an Institutional Member

The Engagement Scholarship Consortium (ESC) welcomes institutions from around the world committed to scholarship-focused community engagement.

Why Become a Member of the ESC?

- Opportunity to meet leadership and faculty from institutions committed to engaged scholarship
- Having access to innovative research and practices in community engagement through ESC conferences and workshops

Benefits

For faculty, staff, and students

- Virtual professional development throughout the year on topics such as Engagement 101, building engagement into one's dossier, publishing engaged scholarship, and broader impacts planning
- Emerging Engagement Scholars Workshop
- Outreach and Engagement Professionals Network
- ESC small-grants program
- ESC awards program
- Journal of Higher Education Outreach and Engagement and Journal of Community Engagement and Scholarship

For leaders seeking to institutionalize engaged scholarship

- Engagement Academy for University Leaders
- ESC leadership roles for both current and emerging leaders
- Monthly Engagement Exchange for Leaders: discussion of key areas such as developing university councils, preparing for the Carnegie Engagement Classification, strategic planning for engagement, community-engaged learning supports, and faculty fellows programs

For everyone! Annual conference:

- Meet with hundreds of like-minded faculty, practitioners, and leaders
- Dozens of presentation opportunities for engaged research and creative arts, teaching, and service
- Pre-conference workshops for skill-building for those doing engaged work with communities and for leaders creating change in their institutions
- Opportunities to collaborate with institutions in your region to host the conference and highlight local work
- Reduced rate for faculty, staff, and students from ESC member institutions
